I've seen a lot of people getting jacked up about this saying that the brokers were doing them dirty by offering this as a GME split rather than a dividend. I think they may be correct that for us, the people owning through brokers, it's a split and this may be RC's ultimate message to us that he's waiting for us to figure out. If you own shares through a broker you don't actually own the shares. Cede & company own the shares and are entitled to the dividend. Your name is just on a Peice of paper somewhere. Since they are ultimately the owners of the shares you're not really entitled to the dividend. Just the split. Another reason that DRS is so important. Don't kill me for thinking out loud.
