I've seen way too many comments from redditors, of course, stating "if he's in, I'm in". I see this as complete BS. Not only do you have 100% faith in 1 or 2 people, you have 0% faith in the company called GameStop. What would happen if you found out the 1 specific person sold all their shares and got out. What, you're staying or leaving? I don't have faith in you, or specific people, just the company and the hope it'll be better some day. Can we lay off on praising specific people, including mods, and look at just what the company is doing? Just an opinion of course
