

Title: You're All The Proof I Need..

Author: RatioAtBlessons

Created 2021-11-25 16:49:41 UTC

Permalink: /r/ratioatblessons/comments/r20ss0/youre_all_the_proof_i_need/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/ratioatblessons/comments/r20ss0/youre_all_the_proof_i_need/

I wrote this as a reply to Stoop, but apparently there's a 10k character limit to comments:

I'm going to be open here.

When it comes to GME and all those hold at least 1 share. I am more passionate and concerned with the share holders than I am about the company itself.

I care about all of you than anything that has to do with GME as an investment.

To me..separate from all of the people and all of the lives..GME is just a stock.

I am not ashamed to admit that. I am not ashamed to say that if it weren't for many of you, your stories, your lives..I would just treat GME like I do any other stock.

I bought GME several years ago when I started trading stocks, I bought GME when I was still ignorant. I really only bought GME because I could afford to buy a shit ton of shares for $100 and because it was the name I recognized. I bought GME the same day that I bought BB..I'll always remember that. I bought BB because well..that was the phone that I had at the time. I've always loved gaming and I've always loved Blackberry's. I didn't know about anything else when it came to stocks and trading other than what knowledge I could merge with Forex trading. Basically, I knew how to read a chart and where the buy button was.

Over the years I kept adding to GME..no matter what. I didn't know about ■■■■. On forums I never entered ones related to GME..never crossed my mind.

I have amassed a considerable amount of shares over the years. At one point buying upwards of 500 per month because I thought that one day the stock would hit...$25 per share and well at my average that would've been enough. $25 per share. HA!

Earlier this year when GME moonedish, one of the days occurred on a day so important to me. That's also the same day that I paid attention to what was happening on Reddit.

I've had an account, I just never used it. I mainly stayed on other forums.

Honestly what I saw filled me with joy beyond money. I saw people interacting and communing. It was great..but I also saw the darkness on the horizon. A name that I knew and had person that I have had more than one clash with before. The more that GME was talked about around the world, the more that this person came into the picture. I knew that if he was connected, that wasn't a good sign for retail. The more that many of you became aware, I was already hard at work. "Fucking Ken. I knew it!" Of all of the previous dealings, this was different..this IS different. It's personal. For Ken, GME is the great ■ ■. That's why it's different.

End GameStop through shorting.

Win.The.Game.

I knew how deep things went with Citadel in other areas because I made myself aware. I've told you all of that. I connected those dots. Others with more knowledge, money, and power MADE ME aware the more I inquired about GME specifically.

So it wasn't until GME and all of you that Ken became my primary focus. As I have shared..Ken and I have crossed paths previously, both those times I was in no position to really do anything..not from a leverage standpoint. He had the money, the name, the power, etc. I've never feared him, I've never backed down, I've never flinched or wilted in his presence or as a result of his actions. He knows that, because he knows me.

When I joined those other communities, I initially kept my interactions limited. I wanted to share, but I wanted to keep it moving. I figured that those who could see beyond the price of the stock and the memes would catch on. The DDs motivated me to do more, share more, and certainly dig more.

I didn't sit and craft those posts to get attention, I just communicated in a way that I'm most comfortable and at my most in tune. Symbols, numbers, vibe, feelings..that's the way I exist in the world. Always finding the rhythm. Always trying to connect with others through thought.

I honestly expected that in today's world many would catch on and decode easily. I did not expect to be recognized or to stand so far out. It happened..and when it did I felt a tremendous amount of responsibility for my interactions and the influence it started to have. The real struggle wasn't keeping it going or wanting to be popular on Reddit. It was not wanting to overburden, spread actual FUD, being wrong, and being a negative distraction.

My way..it worked. It works. So many of you have found the ■ and so many of you continue to. I'll tell you now what I couldn't then. GME was in fact infiltrated. Many of the ghost stories you've heard about are true. Lives and livelihoods were threatened. People were bought..some by force. Mods were compromised on WSB/GME/SS and elsewhere. Treated as commodities. Why? Because the voices were too loud and the unions formed were too strong.

I was banned from GME because of threats were made to two people and those two people did what they had to do. I applaud them for that. They were not as willing to fight back as I am. They had to do what they felt was best, what I would expect anyone to do. Just not me. I would have lost it all..again. I will still do that because that is how I am built. That covers the band..both times. As for silencing my posts..that was done out of spite by people who hated that they lost the attention and "fame". Bitterness. Those people also sold their shares at the high and were just shining in the moment.

As for SS..that's different. Those who took over SS wanted me out because they want to steer the ship. They do not want to associate and align because when all is said and done, they want all the credit, they want to use that to take SS from Reddit to the world as a platform. As they have before with other 'projects' I can respect that which is why I never say a bad word about that community. Not out of fear..because they know I have none of that. I would love to work with those, and in some way..whether they realize it or not..I still do. My voice is still heard in SS. I still contribute. Some of those mods are friends. Some are RatiosInPlainClothes.

Anyways..when it comes to GME..I struggle daily with frustrations of actions/inactions on levels that you just can't know and I can't share outright. It must be that way. But there isn't a day where I don't call one of you(I know you're reading this..thank you) and talk for hours about GME, about everyone holding, about DRS, about meetings, about deals, about contracts, about all of your DMs and the posts. I have to do that because it helps to keep me energized and not overburdened so that I don't feel like the weight of all of this is solely on my shoulders. I ask this person daily if you all will get it, I worry daily about all of your shares and your futures. Whenever my algos detect that I can make money off of a GME trade I feel guilty about simply looking at the calculated potential profit. So much so that even looking at the what the profit would be for that day that I nearly shut down. Each time I feel like I'm the worst person in the world because my alert says that I should place the trade. "How could I do that to everyone else? What would that make me?" Each and every time.

It wasn't until last week that this person..who also still holds..finally told me the harsh truth. By not following the same approach and practice with those GME trades that I would with any other, I was negatively impacting myself in all other areas. Instead of being strong and working towards the overall moon goal for all, I was forcing myself to suffer.

"It's not about the money you'll make or lose, it's about the process. You're fucking up your process..which is fucking up everything else you want to do. Stop doing that. Placing these trades won't change the overall outcome, right? People will still be protected, right? At this point you have to remember the bigger picture.”

This person always reminds me of the oofs I make in other trades by avoiding 100% GME trades. How much I lose on many levels every time I self extinguish. In a helpful way it's thrown in my face that my presence in our community has been lacking. I can tell you all that it's because at times I have so much to say and share about GME, but GME is not my only focus. It can't be. Because it doesn't need to be at this point. Not with all of the other opportunities that exist.

I said this months ago. I'm tired of talking about GME because the conversations don't evolve beyond dates, prices. At this point as has been..Holding is a powerful weapon at our disposal. So to is having more people with the knowledge to invest. The more of us who who can trade stocks, bonds, futures, forex, options, crypto, NFTs..the more that we do bring Ken down.

So if you don't think that any of this really matters to me..it does. You do. This community does. Even those communities and those within do as well.

I gave you at least 59 companies where you could hit Ken where it hurts, if you had just taken the time to learn how..he would have 43 million ways to ■■.

I told you that he has his hands in both sides of politics.

I told you that he has his hands in NFTs.

I've told you, I've led you to the ■, I'll keep telling you and I'll keep showing you.

You have to be willing to learn, you have to be willing to grow, you have to be willing to share. Big big..You've gotta go out and Ratio in your lives at all things..no matter what it is. Because believe it or not, it works. It will work.

As for GME..just because I don't engage as much in the conversations..don't think for a second that I'm not active..that many of us are just letting things happen.

The price may not hit $1m per share, but the floor does continue to rise. Each mistake made by Ken that you don't know about, you do and will continue to see.

Ken is going into '22 exposed. Hopefully by the end of '22 he'll be multiply deposed.

As said in the comment above. The mentally weak will separate from the strong. For a bit. Until the mentally weak find their strength..no matter what though no one person left behind.

Today I am thankful for all. Today I am thankful to be a part of this world. Today I look forward to tomorrow and the tomorrow's beyond where I can give more back to this world than I could ever imagine receiving.

As you sit with family and friends today, I'll be working in the cryptospace, I'll be charting for the next week, I'll be reading, I'll be grinding away because I don't take days off. Not with so much work yet to be done.