I am a software engineer, I'm looking to get into blockchain development and more specifically, trying to conceptualize a new social media platform that utilizes gamestop nft marketplace to take on the horrible YouTube, Instagrams, ticktocks... Hell, why not porn? Something like onlyfans/pornhub that, in a way, brings back the vhs porn era but as NFTs? Hahaha That's just a personal ape example but I've been watching YT vids recently(best reference video <https://youtu.be/c3xSJuoUnN8>) and every creator talks about how shitty youtube is, how they are at the mercy of youtube and forced to find other ways to make money by begging to use other platforms like patreon. What if there was a way for, not just the creators, but the viewers of this content also have power to own those videos as Nfts? Thought about twitch or any of the above social media platforms to be replaced with a new services that somehow can use web app/apis to implement this. Very high level thought going on right now.

I feel it's large corporations have systematically forced content Creators, and in a way the viewers of said content, to get them to of suckling at the teet of those very same social media companies?!

On my own personal journey into blockchain development, this is my goal in mind. But I'm having a hard time conceptualizing or even understanding if it's a possibility? A free(?) platform that utilizes the ability of the gamestop market place/blockchain environment to restore power to the people and give freedom to not only creators but also to their viewers.

This is all still so new I'm trying to think steps ahead and it's difficult.

I have thought of many pros and quite a few cons so I figured I'd reach out to see if anyone could spark my imagination or had similar ideas.

Might be unlikely, but, If anyone from GameStop is on here, is this something that has been/being investigated?

Thanks Apes!
