I tried man. I was a physicist, and I walked away because people aren't numbers or targets.

I've found your echoes across every platform, I've done my own hunting, and stumbled upon and spoken with those that understand you. I got, highlighted, and re-read the books.

But, I am a musician. My field was destroyed, and the value of creativity has been cellar boxed.

...this stuff is just too far off the groove...

Every time i handed a child an instrument, i also gave them a way to succeed, even if it wasn't the "right" way. Because it is easier to fix bad habits, than it is to create flawlessness in a human being. I actually did change the world for the better.

And, flawlessness sounds like shit. Humans have flaws, and music without flaw is not.

I've been naming bots, running out scammers, finding networks. Like a human.

When the dreamers, the music makers, can no longer dream, you'll have no one to cite.

Anyone who has gotten this far, will have interacted with me. Me with 3 year old boots, no heat, and no running water. In America! In the city of brotherly love, the birthplace of freedom.

Take off the ball gag. Proof or Ban. I am rage.
