A regular threesome for some might be NSFW, but for NostradAnus, it's not sexual at all, it's about satisfying an itch.

I have my two hands with trimmed fingernails ready to claw, but I can also use one hand & in the other, hold metal kitchen tongs, washed & ready for scraping my knotty buttlumber

Now under regular circumstances (meaning, not itchy with a potential parasite digging into my butt cheek), I could learn how to use these tongs like a fine swordsman in an en garde pose like an Olympic fencer. I could become greatly skilled & appease my tangy taint for a few hours.

It would be ideal to learn how to use tongs this way when there is no urgency, when the convulsive spasms from my burrowing parasite are never present, which otherwise make my hands shaky & my aim far from perfect.

In this relatively calm state, I think I could train to be a masterful rectal Ronin.

In an agitated state, tho, such as now, messing with the option of tongs could lead to massive bleeding.

I always have options, but they are always only that, options, not ever mandatory. Should I meet anyone who tells me it's mandatory, I should be suspicious that they are hoping I will be unskilled & bleed profusely.

So I'm not engaging in any such options now, not while I have my hands to hodl my butt cheeks & itch now & again in my own modest way.

There are those who will exercise their options to use more elaborate methods, but I am but a simple ape with an itchy winking browneye.

We must all do what feels right & not succumb to peer pressure, after all.

This is of course not financial advice as I'm not a financial advisor, tho GME apes may find value in this post all the same.

It's not medical advice either, I'm just a poop-flinging crayon-eating curious George who sniffs his arse-grating fingers like a world-class sommelier.

Thus spake NostradAnus.
