So im sitting here at work not working. Like a good degenerate. And my mind is trying to wrap my head around what has transpired in my favorite companies stock price. Here is what I have come up with for Gamestop and how this has played out, as written by a first grader.

1. Media, financial advisors, government, parents, smart people - they shouted from the rooftops "be an investor and put money into the stock market: this will give you financial security!"
2. Somehow a bunch of simple minded dumb dumb stupid heads with a cumulative IQ of 7 listened.
3. The above mentioned morons started buying a company that they thought was undervalued, offered great potential, and could provide great returns. *This sounds like they were investors*
4. Nothing happened
5. Nothing happened
6. Nothing happened
7. The stock price appreciates. Everyone mentioned in point one starts freaking the fuck out. It is now a meme stock. We know better than you. Everyone is going to be hurt. Retail is manipulating stock prices. You are hurting the market. You are gamblers. It is time to sell. YOU ARE THE PROBLEM.
8. No one sells. There is mass confusion because we did what you said? Why do you hate us? We are investors like you!
9. The buy button is turned off. They are protecting us from liking the stock.
10. Mass freak out by idiots who like the stock so much that due diligence and deep dives become a full-time second job.
- Note: no one sells.
11. The imbeciles discover that it is all a sham. They buy more.
12. They keep buying.
13. They refuse to stop buying.
14. The mass of degenerates decide to invest in something new. They decide to invest in the destruction of the financial system as we know it. They do this through the direct registration of their shares. Their primary life achievement is now a piece of paper that says their name and an institution (fuck college), GameStop.
15. Mass pandemonium sets in as the group of morons is registering shares at an unprecedented level. The ultimate buffoon has now become the ultimate investor.
16. Everyone listed in Point One refuses to acknowledge anything going on in reality, instead continuing to argue that they know better than us and that we are not investors.
17. The investment has become the best return in the market with significant upside potential. No one but the poors see this.
18. We keep buying. We keep registering. We keep having fun. Sometimes we gain a wrinkle. Mostly we kill brain cells.

Obviously a toddler wrote this and should not be trusted, especially not for financial advice or wisdom. No one proofread it, and no one even would think this is comprehensible. My friends and family make me wear a helmet and point at pictures and hide the crayons and chalk.

I love you all.
