Does there exist a pamphlet or some or other literature that is concise and could be used to hand out to various members of our individual communities?

I mean, what we have already done is immensely powerful but we are only sharing the knowledge with our personal circles and people on the internet. If we were to spread this in different ways we would be providing key information that has been purposely hidden for decades and give people the choice to invest in something that will undoubtedly change their lives.

If something like this doesn't exist I could make something... but it would not be aesthetically appealing nor would it be concise. Perhaps this is a potential group project that needs to be peer reviewed.

I believe that this would be the best way not yet explored to gain traction. It would also be a great way to get signatures for any of the scores of petitions we could submit to local and federal governments.
