It's Friday and celebrating my SO's B-day. SO is into gaming and wants to play Farcry 6 co-op to celebrate. I take our kiddo to my local GameStop, pick up the games, a Cobra Kai t-shirt as a surprise, and let the kiddo pick out a game. Only one worker taking care of everyone like a boss. While waiting in line there is a teenage brother and sister buying some goodies. The teens had a bunch of gift cards and some cash. After all was said and done the teens were $3 short from getting a 12 month online subscription for their switch. I step up and tell them that I'll cover it. The teens cannot believe it, I tell them when I was their age I wished strangers were nice to me like that. Picked up pizza and dessert. Best day ever. Best store ever. If you mistrust my story and think I am karma farming or have ill intent, just please remember that support your favorite store, paying it forward, and creating moments of magic for younger gamers at our favorite store is important. Buy, shop, hodl, and DSR.
