I dont have a lot of k.a.r.r.m.a. to post on the other sub but i have something to add to u/bosshax newest post about other potential products.

Pure tinfoil hat speculation but the other "products" that can come out of the GME LRC partnership that we know is the crypto dividend. But what if that dividend can become the service to which companies can buy from Gamestop or LRC.

For example, lets say BBY thinks there are naked shorting happening with their company. They then buy the naked short seller nuke button (crypto dividend) from GME/LRC financial services and they provide them with a crypto wallet and all other back end financial dividend necessities to execute a crypto dividend.

Now instead of public companies creating all the software, crypto, and legal channels in-house to create their own crypto dividend, just like what Overstock and Gamestop had to do, now companies can just purchase the GME/LRC crypto dividend service. And perhaps add them to their own financial securities platform afterwards. who knows. Is this why RC bought a huge percentage of BBY?
