If you decide to take the tax hit in order to DRS shares from an IRA, the best time to transfer-in-kind to an individual brokerage account is when the price is being suppressed.

The amount you will be taxed on is the market value at time of distribution, so the best time to do this is now, while the price is low.

Beat these slimy, corrupt hedge fucks and brokers at their own game! DRS and turn IOU's into real shares directly registered to your own name while minimizing the amount owed on taxes.

No taxes are due until next year (April). If your shares are in a traditional IRA, you will be taxed when you take a distribution anyway, even after retirement age!

In summary, be aware that the lower the price goes, the lower the tax hit will be. If there are any questions, please comment below to discuss.
