Straight from the GameStop website, their own description of what will be on the marketplace (emphasis mine): "Things like art, collectibles, game items, and real estate can have their ownership tied to non-fungible tokens, *but that's just the beginning* of what NFTs are capable of representing".

Movies...music....books....and they plan to sell real estate. Digital (web3) or literal. Can you imagine the profits? There's almost zero overhead cost, and they will reap a percentage of every single sale, every single time on every single item that is sold and resold on the marketplace.

This company is going to the moon on its own. No need for a MOAS S.
