This is the best news I have had to date. The fact that Elon has for many years been building a case to prove the hedgefunds, financial institutions and SEC are colluding to defraud retail investors.

To think that way back in 2016 I actually had a reply from Elon to one of my tweets.

It was discussing financial markets and Elon was saying how shorts were out of control on Tesla, intentionally trying to destroy his share price. I tweeted that "all financial markets are fraudulent, all share prices, commodity price and exchange rates are manipulated to defraud the public"....and Elon replied! Elon said something half-committed like "in some cases that may be true".

I can't remember exactly his reply but it said to me at the time that he knew a lot about fraud in the financial markets, but he didn't have the whole picture.

At that time I had learnt first hand how deep the fraud rabbit hole went and had watched many markets react directly to my positions while being told time and again by my trading platform provider that this was impossible. I had reported it to the financial ombudsman and even shown them it happening in real time and they had just laughed at me and told me "if you know how they are going to manipulate it then just bet the other way."

Fast forward to today and my knowledge and experience allowed me very early on to see how important the GameStop trade would be. A revolution driven by knowledge and understanding of how the markets really work.

It has been life changing for me in the best way. Not only has it rewarded me financially but also it has confirmed many years of me knowing and experiencing that the markets are being manipulated against the public.

To think that Elon has been building a case and will expose the fraud of the financial markets and it's many players is, to put it mildly, very very exciting.

Thank you Elon and please take this all the way!
