Think I presented enough info to a coworker today to invest in GME. It's been over a year like grinding with this guy, patiently explaining bits and pieces as we talked here and there. Finally today he got that look on his face of realization. What a GRIND.

Remember how long it took scientists to convince the world that the universe does not revolve around the earth? I don't, because I'm smooth brained, but I heard it took a super duper long time. But why give up the good fight when there are innocent absolute idiots out there who need our help?

From one smooth brained ape to another, I'm high, and I love you people. You continue to sharpen me. Excited for the brave new world!
