... to something more notorious? Right now we're DRS'ing everything we can, which is making things much tighter. But right now it feels like no matter how much we DRS, that only GameStop (and maybe ComputerShare) know what the true number is. That being said, it's on them to decide if and when to blow the lid on this.

That's the part that worries me, what would happen if a more HF friendly leadership gets installed by some means (or they are "bought off") and just sit on the true number indefinitely. Would it then be on CS to state "sorry, we can't accept any more DRS, our count matches the original issue"?

Help me understand the most likely simple thing I'm missing.
