Hey folks, I saw on another GME sub Reddit that one of the apes was previously talking about us keeping an eye on another stock - BBIG, because they were handing out a stock dividend in the form of another company called TYDE.

Well, I can tell you that I've been keeping an eye on it for about a month now. Long story short, their stock has been absolutely crushed before, during & even after the stock dividend.

Can anyone please help us understand this & why it might / might not be different for GME?
