

Title: Could hyping dates actually be a good thing?

Author: henrymcgoldrick1

Created 2022-02-03 20:44:34 UTC

Permalink: /r/GME/comments/sjttmi/could_hyping_dates_actually_be_a_good_thing/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/GME/comments/sjttmi/could_hyping_dates_actually_be_a_good_thing/

Pre warning: I've thought about this for all of about 10 minutes so don't be surprised if you instantly debunk it.

Okay so obviously hedge-funds are illegally shorting GME and suppressing pretty much every single attempt we make no matter how hard we try. In theory though, they're still profiting somewhat off of doing this considering they're shorting the stock. To say that they breakeven everyday between money spent and money made by shorting us is a complete shitfaced lie, but on days where we hype dates and have volumes of 7-8 million vs the regular 3-4 might spread the margin of money made vs money spent by not only having to keep up with twice as much action but also because they have to work even harder to smother fomo runs?