

Title: Putting this much effort into crashing GME would lead one to believe that it's not as dead as the MSM wants you to believe.

Classic understatement. There is no way they would continue spend huge bucks crashing GME, having their interns posting FUD, and providing the constant narrative to the MSM that GameStop is over, it's done... if they weren't concerned about something.

I wonder what has them so spooked as to spend billions trying to destroy a company and spook paper hands in to bailing?

I don't think they're terribly bright. I mean, do they honestly think that anyone would sell at $95 when they didn't sell at $340? $260? $200? etc.
