Gme just announced a stock split vote for the shareholders meeting with the ability to sell up to 1 billion shares total. They could've already sold 300 million but have kept it at 76 million total I believe. Everyone's tits are jacked but I have a question. They can just sell shares directly from themselves to whoever wants to buy them. Doesn't that mean that if there are 900 million phantom shares out there that shorts have to cover, can't they just buy them directly from gme and not from retail? Like I said, complete smooth brain here. BUY HODL DRS
