For every transaction there is to be a buyer and a seller.

We all know hat the great majority are buying and not selling.

We suspect that the MMs are Short Selling naked. That means they are generating money off those sales, while likely expecting to Fail To Deliver on those transactions. Generating revenue.

Same line of thought goes for Options.

So, My mind begins wondering, What if everyone suddenly just stopped buying and rather just held?

What effects would this possibly have?

Is it possible that the price would tank short term? Yes, logically, that could be an effect.

Is it possible that it would have no effect on the MMs...again yes.

Is it possible that it could choke off a flow of money into their war chest? hmmm....unknown.

Again, this is not intended to start anyone toward any action, other than investigating this possibility.

Always think critically and keep chasing those answers down. Then ask new questions.

Please comment and point out flaws or strengths in this hypothetical.

Gamestop FTW.
