Hello everyone!

I've been waiting months to finally make this god damn post. Also please mods DM me for verification of employment I understand that's necessary. Now that we have that out of the way let's begin.

I started as a software developer at GameStop in February of 2019. I maintained their infrastructure that allowed fast and effective communication between distribution centers. When i started there I signed a NDA that would expire 6 months after either quitting or being fired.

Now some might be wondering why I quit the best company in the world. I'm still fairly new in my career and I was using this as a stepping stone to get into more senior level fields, but I won't bore you with that topic. My NDA is up, I've called my lawyer grad friends and let them read over my contract THOROUGHLY. So please. AMA
