

Title: Reminder to Zen and Lazy Apes: Reading Posts is Essential in a Battle of Misinformation. Comments Often Have the Real DD Over Appealing Titles.

A lot of posts lately in "hot" has been cringe clickbait lately, giving media headline vibes (including my post right now if I'm being honest) but I hope this comes across as agreeable at the least. I used to have a hunch for the apes who would screenshot comments and share them but lately, it seems like that's what we need. Don't believe me? Test it. For the next post title that looks appealing read it, and try to see if it gives you a wrinkle, if it doesn't, go to the comment section. 9/10 times on both here, and other subs I have noticed the same pattern.

The zen apes are lounging around casually sharing their comments and either going more in-depth about a post teaching me something or giving a good counter DD that may even prove a post as FUD or irrelevant. I told myself I'd never be one of those bitter apes that complain about posts or even have a post complaining but let's not forget this is a battle with media and misinformation. Let's act like it.

Best case scenario: educating new apes replacing the terrible hot posts lately

Worst case scenario: downvotes and negative attention from shills

If I still have your attention: don't give in to the price comparison FUD before the dividend. TSLA didn't have 45% of the float DRSED and neither did overstock. If anything it's comparable to Volkswagen since there was instant demand with a lack of supply after Porsche bought the float (Porsche had mercy and settled for a price with short-sellers, sadly they still sued). That's why DFV said, "just up" when he saw the potential of where we are now and he sees it in the future yet to come. I've been holding since Feb 2021 and I hate that I deleted the screenshot but DFV made that video shortly after morningstar reported GME at 309.24% short interest % on October 22, 2020 (hopefully someone has it, hmu if you do I hate providing a "trust me bro" source) apes made them mad a while back and they removed all data (veteran apes member, I member).
