

Title: NFT Marketplace / Coco Cola / Dividends

Author: Delicious-Display900

Created 2022-07-24 22:03:48 UTC

Permalink: /r/GME/comments/w779s7/nft_marketplace_coco_cola_dividends/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/GME/comments/w779s7/nft\_marketplace\_coco\_cola\_dividends/

Just had a shower thought, and maybe it's been talked about already, am I way off?

July 13 RC tweets, "I love coke". We know that Coco Cola made almost an entire city of millionaires in the 20s and 30s, from dividends. GameStop hasn't pay dividends since 2019, but there's been ample posts about their ability to do so at any point, and their recent dividend split showed that they really are for rewarding their investors.

GameStop NFT Marketplace: it's currently in beta, but some estimates put their daily average fees at $17k. Those fees are based exclusively on art at this point. We know that NFTs have FAR GREATER applications than art (I'm not knocking art!). So once GameStop releases the full Marketplace, and the full potential of NFTs are realized, those $17k fees will look like chump change.

Infinity pool: I've always loved this idea. I have shares in CS that I never sell myself, ever. And I know some will dislike me for this, but I have a handful in a broker as well, to potentially sell.

So let's say GameStop waits a while longer (I really don't know much about dividends in general), and then rewards their investors with dividends when they are more profitable. Dividends are a percentage of profit, so  $\text{IF}$  the dividends are based on the NFT Marketplace profits, and the Marketplace takes off...

Maybe we make our tendies on dividends, not the sale of shares.

Also, this could all be wrong, I really don't know anything. Either way, I'm holding for life.

Oh, and be kind to one another! :) Much love!