

Title: I've been for both Popcorn and GME for a long time but Popcorn is being pushed considerably more along other social media.

Author: joshua1486

Created 2022-01-13 21:43:07 UTC

Permalink: /r/GME/comments/s3ahve/ive_been_for_both_popcorn_and_gme_for_a_long_time/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/GME/comments/s3ahve/ive_been_for_both_popcorn_and_gme_for_a_long_time/

As the title suggests, is it just me or do you see considerably more attention towards Popcorn on Twitter and socials than you do GME?

I hold 5% popcorn and 95% GME in my investments for those wondering but I have always believed in GME as having genuine fundamentals, lots of cash on hand and a genuine future.

Don't get me wrong I don't expect the cinema business to die... but really what are they going to do to make a cinema experience so much better? Unless you're watching it in a capsule like a Universal Studios theme park ride and it doesn't make you throw up then what else can they do to grow sales?

GameStop has a legitimate future and a fantastic leadership team in place. We should be talked about constantly and not even because of the crime. Just celebrating how much potential we have, I appreciate this could potentially just be radio silence across the board because RC hasn't stated play (his hand) "publicly" although this is the best thing to do.

We as lovers of GameStop and fans of the stock should be making it known that GameStop has a great future. Despite the future we should be sharing good experiences and feed back with people, give the company free advertising. Like and retweet every positive sentiment about gme, that's how you get people to latch on!

Don't forget to DRS apes and appettes, tell your wife's boyfriend too!