I have never actually done options before, I'm still learning the foundations but is it worth getting into options on GME for good returns or is it just not worth it? Is the risk high?

If so, what should one look for in a good option to buy?

If anyone has like a link to an extensive DD or anything that can show how to pick a good option when buying a call option or put but I'm not really interested in put options on GME coz that's basically betting against the beloved stock and I ain't about that life, but I would to know how the whole thing works.
