So I was in the shower this morning (jacking my tits, as one does) and I had a simple thought. Out of all the companies that have claimed to have the best share holders in the world; none come close to GameStop share holders.

Name any other company who's individual share holders are THIS invested in the well being of the company they hold a piece of. Go ahead, I'll wait.

Hodlers of GME don't simply own a stock and hope for a return on investment. They take action to build the company they believe in!

Suggestions pour in to GameStop constantly with new ideas and ways to improve. Corruption and manipulation is uncovered daily. More shares are purchased regardless of the price. No one bats an eye when there are dips, and in fact there is excitement to own more at a discount! There are even investors who take pride in owning the most expensive share!

And this only scratches the surface.

Ryan Cohen has absolutely been turning this company around, and he knows his investors are FULLY invested in the success of the company. Whatever plans he has in place will undoubtedly show his loyal investors that he sees and appreciates them.

I have never had more conviction about something in my life, and I haven't even mentioned this BIG EVENT yet!

Unfortunately I'm not mature enough to post in the big boy sub, but I wanted to express my excitement and appreciation for these communities, and the glorious journey this has been!

Thank you all!
