I'm just thinking that if there is really as much risk/money behind this as some of us suspect, then the sharks are probably swimming here too. With large sums of money and financial disruption on the table, I would guess there would also be multiple private and state actors here, because there's always an angle to play. Please remember that all types of groups from banks, to students unions are viable targets for intelligence agencies.

I personally believe that the only way anyone can stop this is through construction and dissemination of a convincing enough narrative - the ones on CNBC are completely transparent and bogus, but anyone with a motive has now had a decent amount of time since Jan 21 to build psychological models on the various subreddits. Ok I'm taking off my tin foil for the night, cheers!
