

Title: Question: What is the record date for the stock split via a stock dividend?

Author: ManySwimming7

Created 2022-04-29 13:52:06 UTC

Permalink: /r/DDintoGME/comments/uemeaq/question_what_is_the_record_date_for_the_stock/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/DDintoGME/comments/uemeaq/question_what_is_the_record_date_for_the_stock/

(a) So we all know the Record Date for voting in the annual shareholder meeting was April 8th. Case in point - I had 50 shares in Fidelity on April 8th that were DRS'd the next day or two, and I still got voting materials from Fidelity for those shares. Voted FOR, of course. Because I had shares on that platform on that date, I got voting materials for those shares through that platform.

(b) Similarly, I would imagine a stock split via stock dividend requires a similar date, right? or is it a 'point in time' kind of thing wherein at the moment they announce (or before trading next day), shares are sent to ComputerShare and then to DTCC.

(c) However, I do not or have not yet seen information relating to a Record Date for the stock split via stock dividend (semantically the most clear way to convey how the company plans to give shareholders more shares, imo).

Is the record date for the stock split via dividend:

1. Not relevant per the argument in paragraph (b)
2. The same as for voting in Annual Meeting, April 8th
 1. This would be somewhat confusing and if not specifically stated by the company, speculative
 3. Not yet published
 4. Published but I haven't seen it...