I don't want this to come across super FUDdy, I'm fully bullish on the stock split dividend and believe it could be the end. This post is more about a potential fake sque3ze.

One of the only arguments I've seen so far against a fake sque3ze is that Marge will come calling.. but we've also seen how they can raise zombie stocks by 12000% whenever needed, effectively giving infinite leverage.

So what's to stop them raising these zombie stocks again to allow them to let GME run up to say $2000 and then dumping it?

Am I being smooth? Anybody have a counter?
