There have been no major announcements by Gamestop that would drastically change their stock price, its all been theorized by subreddits. Until something material is announced GME, or a broker says we can't DRS your shares because they're all gone, GME will continue to move in stride with XRT.

XRT is moving down, along with the majority of the market, because interest rates are going to rise, GDP is being forecast to drop over the next few years, and easy monetary policy is coming to an end.

Expect this trend to continue until something major is announced by Gamestop, and don't pay attention to any post that tries to forecast a date or get you excited, its all hype.
