For those of you that can't read. Cloudstar, one of the title industry's primary cloud providers, just got hit with ransomware. What's a title? Just mortgages, loans, real estate. That kind of thing. If they can't get the cloud services back up by Monday (spoiler, they can't and won't, recovery from a ransomware attack isn't fast) then Monday will be super fun because a good chunk of the title industry won't be able to complete transactions. Get ready to see lots of red on open.
