Nothing more to add here. I don't really understand these things, but from what I do understand DAOs can be set up to achieve a financial objective. Retail has been shown to be the underdog in this whole saga because we don't have the purchasing power of SHFs. Would a DAO be able to change that? This is probably a bad idea especially on the collusion argument. I'm not really sure how it would help, maybe just ensure orders don't go through dark pools and get GameStop shares registered. Apes are mostly doing that already, but it might be easier for people who don't have the time and effort to join in. Also who would actually organise it, it sounds like a nightmare.
