I had never purchased stock before a few days ago. I downloaded the M1 app and dropped $25k on gme. I have been reading non stop the past few days to learn as much as I can. So I know I should have DRS and why. I now know that I should have not bought through M1 for their connection to Apex. Today I have been hearing so much conflicting info regarding the split.

If the plan is not to sell why does It matter if the sell/buy gets disabled?

After the price moons what happens?

When and how is the correct way to sell without fucking over other apes?

Is the price going to remain on the moon after the thing happens or is going to fall back down at some point?

If I start the DRS process now and the price moons before the process is complete what happens?

What is the process of selling DRS once it is appropriate? (I read that there's a limit to how much you can sell in a day)

What is my best plan of action if M1 doesn't allow me to transfer my shares to computer share in order to DRS?

I just want to be clear, my intention is to DRS all of my GME and HODL for as long as the apes with wrinkles Tell me I should. I'm at the mercy of all you retards that aren't quite as retarded as me.
