We know some people want us to lay out a whole detailed plan today, but that's not gonna happen. You won't find us talking a big game, making a bunch of lofty promises, or telegraphing our strategy to the competition. That's the philosophy we adopted at Chewy.

Here are a few things we've done so far: refresh the board, added technology and retail experience to the leadership team, paid off all our long term debt and strengthened the balance sheet, and begun laying the foundation for long term growth.

Moving forward, we want you to judge GameStop based on our actions, not our words. Thank you everyone, and as my dad would say, "buckle up."
