I read the internal RH communication transcript, the smoking gun from the antitrust lawsuit, where RH Securities President and COO Jim Swartwout said he sold his movie stock and that they were moving GME 100%. Got me thinking, I wonder how these transactions were reported on the SEC's 13F-HR/A Institutional investment manager holdings report. This is the document an insider has to submit if they trade their company's stock. Well, guess what? If you search Gamestop and Citadel 13F for past year, five filings appear for Citadel Advisors, LLC. Clicked on each of these documents to view and, where the document should be, there is a landing page saying, "Oops we can't find this file."

I've never seen this and I am a research junkie. I searched other 13F-HR/A Citadel documents that didn't involve GME or movie stock and had no problem viewing those 13F documents. What does this mean? I don't know but, like I said, I've never seen that error before.

Edit: You can look up at: <https://www.sec.gov/edgar/search/>. Click "more search options." In document word, search word is Gamestop. Below this, in company name, search word is Citadel. Time period set at past year.
