Sure, Shitdel, Melvin, Robinhood, Point 72, Susquehanna, etc are all easy villians in this GME saga. They're short the stock, haven't closed, and they're all headed for liquidation. Some of them even show up on the news to yakk some bullshit.

BUT even though they are greedy, slimy billionaires and very much the faces of short sellers, it's important to remember: ONE BILLION DOLLARS IS ONLY WORTH 10 SHARES OF GAMESTOP.

Think Bigger, Apes!

Blackrock, State Street, and Vanguard are the big players in the ETF game. They are lending ETF shares to the hedge funds to continue shorting this great stonk. Together, these three manage TENS OF TRILLIONS.

The biggest banks, like UBS, Credit Suisse, BNY Mellon, worth trillions, are also on the hook.

These banks are insured!

Remember AIG? The insurance company from 2008? They're still around, and they're still fukt.

Other big players in the insurance hustle are MetLife, Allianz, Aviva, Prudential, and Ping An.

THINK BIGGER

Kenny G is NOT the final boss. Not even close. I'm starting to think the abundance of his gross face on the subs is simply another form of price anchoring.

Most of us poors can't even get our heads around the concept of a billion dollars, but as MOAS S approaches, it's even more important to understand the concept of TRILLIONS OF DOLLARS.

WELCOME TO THE FUTURE. BUCKLE THE FUCK UP.
