Am i the only one who feels like they're all alone in walking this path of knowing that gme has unraveled? Everyone I know irl feels like they're in a dream. They're just happy being blissfully ignorant about the end of capitalism while I'm watching the world slowly burn. I honestly feel like that kid from Brownfield Capital in the Big Short screaming at his mom about "dark ages" and to wake the fuck up. I try to get away from it by surfing, drawing and reading but it's so hard to keep the dread at bay when you know the world is about to split in 2. Idk i just felt like I needed to vent to someone who understands.
