XX holder, working my way to XXX. Just occurred to me today that buying and holding shares of gme is without a doubt the most sure investment I've ever made, for two reasons:

1) Gamestop has a fanatic investor base that understands the value of the company and is committed to holding and not day trading, and I'm happy to be a part of it.

2) Gamestop as a company has no direction to go in but up: experienced and proven C suite, no debt, and obviously expanding into an industry leader in the fastest growing industry of the future (NFT). The fact that the industry has no centralized market leader or marketplace (opensea has too many issues) only enhances GameStop's value.

This is awesome. I plan to hold and increase my position for the next 20 years. Honestly I may never sell.
