

Title: Inputs v. Outputs: a conversation with a skeptical buddy of mine

Author: Impssblefnd

Created 2022-03-08 17:57:59 UTC

Permalink: /r/GME/comments/t9mooi/inputs_v_outputs_a_conversation_with_a_skeptical/

Url: <https://i.redd.it/w8syp9n787m81.jpg>

Hmmm will it go back up though? I feel like since it tanked earlier this year it's been straddling around the 100 mark

What research have you done?

I there than looking at the price lol

I know haha but I've been watching it and it the highest it's gone up was ~130

And it just dropped again to below 100 yesterday

I'm heavily biased as a shareholder, obviously, but something to keep in mind – the price is an output, not an input

I haven't done any research

It's like saying gas expensive because the price is high.

It's true in a binary sense, but does nothing to explain why the price is high lol

Yea I get that

And you're right I should look into it further