

Title: Tesla did a stock split in the form of dividend in 2020. Were the same levels of mistakes seen then? Mistakenly recorded as simple split? Etc.

Author: disoriented_llama

Created 2022-08-03 14:15:48 UTC

Permalink: /r/TheGloryHodl/comments/wf7r5a/tesla_did_a_stock_split_in_the_form_of_dividend/

Url: /r/Superstonk/comments/wdnru6/tesla_did_a_stock_split_in_the_form_of_dividend/

Linked Post Content:

I'm trying to gauge if "stock split as dividend" is some novel event worthy of the level of chaos that is being seen (specifically in Germany).

Tesla did this in 2020. Their filing stated, "a five-for-one split of Tesla's common stock in the form of a stock dividend". Does any one know if there were similar problems then?

I'm guessing not, but it would be good to know to help put current events into perspective.