In trying to understand the opponent, let me start by saying this is not financial advice or technical analysis. This is opinion of what I would do to GameStop/GME if I were KG.

First probably start off with a jar of Mayo.

If I know, or had a good though inclination that RC may purchase an additional massive amount of shares or know that he's going to make some major announcement here's what I'd do...

I would cause the dip that we've been seeing over the past month. There may be some day traders that are selling during this that tried to make a quick buck. So I'd acquire those shares. (DIP)

Then I'd make the price jump up. Not liftoff, and not massive. Trying to artificially make it look like there was a major jump. This may cause a bunch of new/young/scared investors get out thinking they got some gains (again, possibly KG thinking, not mine). (Blip)

Then drop the price (before any type of RC or GS announcement) trying to get as many to sell as possible thinking that they missed the moonshot from the Blip.

Then... the announcement is made. The inevitable takeoff. (RIP)

If it does come true that RC purchases another 6 million shares then there's no way that I can see, from the DD I've read that the price wouldn't just skyrocket.

Again... Just thinking out loud of possible future price action if I were KG.
