

Title: Could it be...nah probably not.

Author: Complex-Lab8670

Created 2022-06-22 12:50:33 UTC

Permalink: /r/DDintoGME/comments/vi4j3t/could_it_benah_probably_not/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/DDintoGME/comments/vi4j3t/could_it_benah_probably_not/

Could it be that the powers that be actually want a massive wealth distribution? It sounds implausible but, I have no doubt that this situation has made it all the way to the top. Gary Gensler and the SEC, the Fed, the White House, members of the Banking Committee in Congress...they all know. The magnitude of this event requires it. They have to.

Could it be that the delay is purposeful? That they want to delay so more folks get onboarded?

The SEC, FBI and DOJ, etc... could bring the whole house down by announcing one of many measures.

Are they being held back, not in hopes that retail just go away, but they retail will join in numbers to create a more wide spread distribution?

Probably the first few months in made sense to see where things went, to see if funds could somehow snake their way out of this situation. The economic impact would have been enormous, even then, and destabilizing to the point of alarm. But after summer, it was well evident that retail was not going away. And certainly once GME DRS numbers were published with a steady uptrend of locked shares, there was no doubt.

Nah, probably not.