The best DD reads that I've seen lately were:

1. Billionaire Boys Club, and
2. Glass Castle (expands on house of cards, but goes further... And unbelievably I missed it from 4+ months ago!)

BBC Part 1 (read them all)

Glass Castle

In the first I was terrified at the extent that people are willing to go to make, protect and increase their wealth. These people have no morals. They'll do whatever it takes to accumulate and keep wealth.

In the latter, one thing really stuck out... What if the comment about fractionalised NFTs is actually our catalyst to everything?

Not in the sense of dividends, but as a replacement for existing shares (a move from record keeping by the DTC to GameStop NFT marketplace).

If GameStop decide to pull out of the NYSE and create 62.5 million ERC20 tokens (which are supported by L.Ring.) for the theoretical holders of the float... Then this would be EndGame would it not?

Hedge funds without physical shares would need to close their positions. MOASS would be inevitable.

The world would see an alternative to dodgy banks and middlemen, and provided that it works for GameStop, it would be quickly followed by other market participants (read everyone that has been screwed historically - Tesla, Overstock, etc).

Can you imagine how quickly Elon would move and the reaction to his first tweet! If the GamesStop market place isn't just an NFT marketplace... But decentralised finance platform too. This could be the beginning of the biggest paradigm shift in recent decades...

DeFi: a permissionless infrastructure, fully secured by encryption, that enables people and businesses to perform transactions directly with each other, without needing institutions to act as intermediaries. (Finextra.com)

Imagine the world we could have if the fuckery ceases! This is why I don't care at all about the price, and why I'm just sitting down with a smile on my face. Let this sucker play out and see where it goes. If Ryan is really orchestrating this then we already have the best seats in the house.
