

Title: Negative articles from the motley fool were published even as the chart (around 2/9/22) on GameStop looked bullish

Author: Yet_another-investor

Created 2022-02-20 23:44:21 UTC

Permalink: /r/GME/comments/sxew02/negative_articles_from_the_motley_fool_were/

Url: <https://www.reddit.com/gallery/sxew02>

Why MicroVision, AMC, and GameStop Are Jumping Today

The meme stock trio have a habit of bursting higher or tumbling lower as a group.

Rich Duprey (TMFCop)
Feb 18, 2022 at 12:25PM
- Author Bio

Because the overall trend of these meme stocks has been to slide lower, investors shouldn't be surprised to see the trio give up their gains, either all at once or over time.

With no real catalysts evident for any of them to actually grow yet, such bounces are bound to happen, just as the inevitable decline will follow.

Rich publishes this article even as the chart on GameStop looked bullish. He states that GameStop could give up all its gains. He also mentions that there is no catalyst evident for any of them to actually grow yet even after Immutable X mentioned that GameStop is partnering with Immutable X for a NFT marketplace. In 2021 the market for NFT's was around 24 billion. This article seems misleading and attempts to discourage any current or new GameStop investors from buying more GameStop stock.

Why GameStop Stock Hit the Reset Button This Week

The meme stock rebounded after a terrible run to start 2022.

Demetri Kalogeropoulos (TMFSigma)

Feb 11, 2022 at 3:25AM

• Author Bio

GameStop is far from a thriving business, though. Cash outflow in the third quarter was nearly $300 million. The company is booking significant operating losses as it attempts to pivot into an e-commerce focus while closing unproductive stores.

It's unclear how, or even whether, GameStop can return to a pace of steadily expanding sales and earnings. Most investors expect revenue declines in 2023, for example, after the company reaches roughly $6 billion in annual sales this year.

GameStop routinely booked around $9 billion of revenue in its best retailing days around 2016. But investors should be skeptical about an impending return toward that sales level as they consider buying this highly volatile meme stock.

Should you invest $1,000 in GameStop Corp. right now?

Before you consider GameStop Corp., you'll want to hear this.

Our award-winning analyst team just revealed what they believe are the 10 best stocks for investors to buy right now... and GameStop Corp. wasn't one of them.

Why MicroVision, AMC, and GameStop Are Jumping Today

The meme stock trio have a habit of bursting higher or tumbling lower as a group.

Rich Duprey (TMFCop)

Apr 15, 2022 at 12:25PM

Author Bio

Because the overall trend of these meme stocks has been to slide lower, investors shouldn't be surprised to see the trio give up their gains, either all at once or over time.

With no real catalysts evident for any of them to actually grow yet, such bounces are bound to happen, just as the inevitable decline will follow.

Why GameStop Stock Hit the Reset Button This Week

The meme stock rebounded after a terrible run to start 2022.

Demetri Kalogeropoulos (TMFSigma)
Feb 11, 2022 at 3:25AM
- Author Bio

GameStop is far from a thriving business, though. Cash outflow in the third quarter was nearly $300 million. The company is booking significant operating losses as it attempts to pivot into an e-commerce focus while closing unproductive stores.

It's unclear how, or even whether, GameStop can return to a pace of steadily expanding sales and earnings. Most investors expect revenue declines in 2023, for example, after the company reaches roughly $6 billion in annual sales this year.

GameStop routinely booked around $9 billion of revenue in its best retailing days around 2016. But investors should be skeptical about an impending return toward that sales level as they consider buying this highly volatile meme stock.

Should you invest $1,000 in GameStop Corp. right now?

Before you consider GameStop Corp., you'll want to hear this.

Our award-winning analyst team just revealed what they believe are the 10 best stocks for investors to buy right now... and GameStop Corp. wasn't one of them.

Demetri publishes this article even as the chart on GameStop looked bullish. He mentions that GameStop is far from a thriving business even though they beat the revenue expectations during their earnings for three consecutive quarters in a row. He states "Most investors expect revenue declines" which appears to be deceiving as he would not know who "Most investors" are. He also compares revenue from 2016, which is pre-covid. Within his article, there is a suggestion not to buy GameStop now. This article seems misleading and attempts to discourage any current or new GameStop investors from buying more GameStop stock.

