Here they go, at it again despite the healthy chart. I had to laugh at this 'explainer' for the GME share price:

"The Fed is the wild card. If easy money helped propel the meme stocks and other speculative corners of the market, then the lack of easy money could help cause them to sink. And with inflation still soaring, monetary policy is likely to get much tighter very quickly. "These market segments benefited the most from the abundance of liquidity early in the recovery and are among the most vulnerable as policy support lessens," writes Keith Lerner, chief market strategist at Truist Advisory Services."
