I saw a question on superstonk about why fidelity cares if we move shares from a cash account to ComputerShare. And the first response was something like "if you didn't research how fidelity makes money before using them your an idiot."

I think it is always enlightening when you know what the motivations are of people and companies you interact with. Thought I could make a graphic with legit funding and also the shady/illegal ways market participants make money.

Think this would be helpful? Any resources you guys know about that lays out how the market really works and what the motivations are of market participants that I could transform into a graphic?

Thanks!
