I'm part of a 20+ year stock club with a sizable portfolio and some of the smartest traders/friends I know. But they can't get it through their skulls about GME and continue to bash me even with all the evidence. Some believe the Gov won't let it happen, while others purely look at numbers or just call it a meme and move on. These are guys that read forbes, market watch and have msnbc on all day. I managed to get them to buy 5 shares around the $180 mark, but it baffles me the lack of intelligence and what is happening right before their eyes. Anyone else experiencing the same? I've already planned for the day when I text them all a "You're Welcome" gif, then ride into the sunset. Stay strong apes. WAGMI
