So I just DRS'd 124 GME shares from my Fidelity account for the first time. I tried to provide them my Computershare account number but they said they had no way of directing the shares into a specific account. They said they would provide my name and SSN to CS and that CS would handle directing the shares into the right account.

Does this seem right? Should I follow up with CS to make sure they land in the right account and that duplicate accounts aren't created?
