The topic of updating my Will came up in my household a few weeks ago. It has been a long time since it was updated. It still reads to give my dead in-laws custody of my now 25 year old son.

Today, the Will is officially updated with all my current assets. The one provision I'd like to note is that my DRS'd Gamestop shares will be passed along under one condition. They cannot be sold unless all other investment assets that my children have has been sold first.

That is all. They turned off the buy button. I turned off the sell button.
