As the title suggests, I find the concept of DRS'ing my shares confusing. I have read through the guides and my understanding is to ensure that you have registered ownership of that stock under your name?

I bought GME on etoro over a year ago now. I was new to investing and felt the most comfortable using that platform. Even now, I feel it's fair to say I lack a lot of experience and knowledge. I've held the whole time on there but I can't ignore the DRS posts anymore.

Is it bad to keep them on etoro? Is it that they will sell it without my permission if it blows up? I think if enough people are stressing how important it is, then I should listen but I just want to know why.

I just feel a bit out of my depth, so I thought I'd ask for some help.
